Holland Named Heart Chairman

Ivey Holland has been named Appomattox County chairman for the 1964 Heart Fund. Holland says that the Piedmont Heart Association, of which Appomattox is a part, is taking an active part in making progress against our No. 1 health problem—heart and cardiovascular diseases. "Volunteer contributions are vital to the program," said Holland.

W. C. Dudley is Pamplin chairman for the Fund drive. Dr. J. A. Mathews is a member of Piedmont Heart Association's Medical Advisory Committee. Holland and Charles Moses, Jr., are Directors in the Association.

Sunday, February 23, has been designated Heart Sunday for the county. Volunteers will be making a door-to-door campaign drive, with various churches taking a special offering in other sections of the county.

Pastor Speaks

SPIRITUAL ISRAEL

Talking with my son the other day, as we discussed the relationship of the Jewish people to God's redemptive purpose in the world, he asked, "Who is Spiritual Israel?" I had used that term in seeking an explanation of God's relationship with His people.

Paul, the great apostle of Christ, as well as an authority in Jewish history and tradition, speaks in chapter nine of Romans about Spiritual Israel. He states that now in the light of the fact that some of the direct decendents of Abraham had rejected Christ as the promised Messiah, God in Christ has made 'Spiritual Israel" from all who trust Him as Saviour and Lord. He further stated that this does not mean God's word to Israel had failed, rather he promised that in Isaac all decendents who believe will be blessed.

So out of the rejection of Israel God has made a "new nation," spiritual Israel of all who accept Christ.

What does this mean to us? For one thing, the purpose of God is not just sectional, but universal. In Christ there is no east, west, north or south. To Christ there is only one race, the human race. Whenever anyone accepts as His Saviour and Lord the way of life, he becomes a part of spiritual Israel.

There are many sociological, economic and cultural factors that enter into the divisions of races, but they are not basically theological. If we attempt to make it so, we do injustice to God's word, and the revelation of His truth in Christ.

In all of the problems which face us in our modern world, it is my considered opinion that as Christians we must work on the sociological economic and educational level, and not use Christian theology as the basic structure to keep us divided as races. Any who thinks knows that there are different levels of civilization and there is not blanket solution. But there is one fact to be kept in mind, all are brothers in Christ. I may not want, or feel I should, associate with some others in my society, but this does not precude that they are not my brothers in Christ.

By keeping this in mind, perhaps the concept "spiritual Israel" can be effective in helping all of us in the various areas of life.

It is my choice to determine my close personal friends and associates, but it is also my responsibility to treat all people as "brothers in Christ". I cannot as a Christian take this lightly.

The message of Christ, the gospel, the proclamation of the message of the church, is to effect these truths in life.

A Man Made Whole

Lesson for February 16, 1964

Luke's story of the "demoniac," the many-deviled man, who did not know his own name, being so many different persons at once—and all bad—this story raises more questions than can well be answered here. What we want to do is to look at the symptoms of the man, who would today be considered by any psychiatrist as a very sick man.

The man had no name. He was so wild he hardly needed clothes. He lived without clothes, and (we may guess) without much to eat. He would not stay under a roof, but stayed in the open — not in the good green wood but among the tombs of a burying-ground. He was a suitable place for him, for the man was dead. He had lost contact with living men and living affairs. What the devils were — whether spawned by his own brain, or demons moving in from a dark other world — we do not know. Whatever they were, they had charge of the man. His life was eaten out by these sinister indifferents. When Jesus asked the man for his name, the reply was "Call me Legion" — using the word for a regiment of soldiers. Actually what was in the man was more like a mob than a well-drilled regiment.

20th Century Demons

Today we say we don't believe in devils any more. This is strange, considering how many bedeviled victims there are all around us. You do not have to go far or search long, before you find men who are not men. They do not know rightly who they are. They have many conflicting desires, yet no real purpose. They are the slaves of habit, slaves of their most beast-like desires. Some of these modern demoniacs are obviously afflicted. Alcoholics, dope addicts, drivers who are never safe behind a wheel, victims of hot temper, fear gnawing envy, or a thousand other devils, walk our streets, imperil our highways, inhabit our jails, reformatories and hospitals. A person who has lost all control of himself, who cannot resist some particular temptation, who perhaps knows very well what this next drink is going to do to him but must have it regardless of consequences, such a man may have a name; but it is not he himself who bears the name. He is no longer himself, he is a walking habit, a walking bundle of fighting impulses, he does over and over what he swore to himself what he would not do again.

The Cure

No one knew just how Jesus did it; but one thing was certain: the demon-ridden man was cured. Whatever was wrong with him was made right. No longer a naked, howling, savage lunatic he was seen dressed, sitting and listening to Jesus, once more a member of society, a human being. For the first time in years, perhaps, he could honestly say "I" and not "we." But it was not his own self-control that had won the struggle. He had been brought so low there was no struggle left in him. It was Jesus who took hold of him, it was Jesus who mastered the devils, not he.

In the treatment of alcoholics today, cures need not be expected so long as the victim insists he can "take it or leave it alone." For an alcoholic to be cured the first necessity is to admit that he is an alcoholic, that he can't get out of himself by himself. And the Alcholics Anonymous has found that the best and surest helper there is, is God. The Christian church knows that this is true of others, too. When a man is helpless in the grip of evil inner forces, it is not a case where self-cure is advisable — because what really ails us is beyond our own power to cure. To admit we are defeated, to admit we need help, is the first step on the road to freedom but there always has to be some understanding heart. Suppose Jesus had been afraid of the man, or despised him, or thought of him only as a disgusting interruption?
